The End Not Yet

The Jury Could Not Agree—Troy and Hughes Remanded Until Next Assizes—The Evidence of Troy and the Able Addresses of Counsel—The Prisoners to be Left in the Keeping of the Sheriff and Jailer Until next Fall—Notes.

As early as 7 o'clock on Saturday morning last people began arriving at the Court House, with the intention of securing a good seat and getting a good look at the prisoners, Troy and Hughes. By 8 o'clock the court room was packed with men, women and children, and the crowd had only just begun to arrive. About 9 o'clock the Sheriff received instructions from the Judge that the court room would have to be cleared, and only the petit jurors, reporters and officials allowed in until after the jury had been empanelled. This difficult and disagreeable task the Sheriff performed with but little friction, and at 9:30, on the arrival of His Lordship the Judge, the court was opened.

Mr. Wilson, Hughes' counsel, stated that he was ready to go on with the case, and Hughes was asked to stand up in the dock, and as the jurors were sworn, to challenge any he should see fit. But two were ordered to "stand aside," evidently at the request of counsel, as the prisoner though scanning each juror closely seemed perfectly indifferent as to the selection. These were sworn in: J. M. Spafford, Lewis Hartman, Henry Switzer, Camden; John Blackadar, South Fredericksburgh; John Black, Camden; Thos. N. Trumpour, Adolphustown; John South, Camden; Richard Dinner, Napanee; John McGuire, Amherst Island; Hugh Duncan, Napanee; Alfred Sexsmith, North Fredericksburgh; Wm. H. Chalmers, South Fredericksburgh.

The prisoner was then notified that his stood indicted for the murder of Angus McLeod, and in a clear voice answered "not guilty."

The doors of the court room were then opened and the crowd admitted in an orderly manner. When the seating capacity of the large room was fully taken up the doors were closed, much to the disappointment of hundreds who pushed and jostled each other outside. The crowd in the halls, corridors and on the stairway was the greatest ever witnessed on the premises, and the wonder is that accidents did not occur, — such pressing, pushing and struggling took place. Outside the building the crowd was still greater, and in the space between the court house and jail fully five hundred surged to get a glimpse of the prisoners as they were taken to the court room.

Mr. Riddell in his opening address to the jury said he felt the great responsibility resting on him as the representative of the crown and people. His and their duty was to bring out the whole truth. The crown desires the death of no man. The worst case a man could be put in is to hang him. But for the protection of the public it was necessary that murderers should be thus dealt with. "Whoso sheddeth man's blood, by man also shall his blood be shed", was a degree of Almighty God, and that degree had never been repealed or done away with. Before finding a verdict it would be their duty to satisfy themselves that the crime had been committed and by whom. He lucidly explained to them what the crime of murder meant. His Lordship would explain the law in the matter as. They were the final judges of the facts. There were two kinds of murder (murder means killing) murder and manslaughter. He did not contend that the prisoners went to kill, but they intended not to be arrested in case of discovery. If the prisoner went with others to commit burglary, and a murder were perpetrated, the prisoner was equally guilty.

Mr. Riddell here briefly summed up the circumstances of the case. In closing he pointed to Troy, who sat inside the railing beside Jailer Vanluven, and said, Troy, I adjure you as a condemned murdered to tell the truth. You stand on the verge of eternity, and no evidence you give will clear you and I can hold out no hope for you."

Troy—"I swear I am not. Was tried here and convicted for murder. I will tell the truth in this case, "so help my God". I understand that it cannot make any difference to me now; I understand that I am sentenced to be hanged; I know the prisoner Hughes; he was with me in the Kingston penitentiary and we both wear the garb of the penitentiary; I knew him there some months previous to the murder of Angus McLeod; first met him in Brockville; believe I had before a verdict; would be their duty to satisfy I was not on speaking terms with him; guess we were both classified as tramps; I remember meeting him in Port Hope, on Monday or Tuesday night, a day or two previous to the killing of Angus McLeod; I did not know McLeod; Hughes had been with me in Brampton and Stratford and came with me as far as Peterboro; Hughes and me, may-be, dropped behind; Penn was known in Central prison as Frank Hayes; Penn is a nickname inasmuch as he is supposed to be a Pennsylvanian; his real name is Fitzgerald; (photo of Penn produced) I recognize photograph of Penn, the side face is especially good; met Hughes at Port Hope next after Paris; Penn and I went to a barn east of the station on the front road (McNaughton's) and found Hughes there; stopped there until morning; two boys, children of a widow, were living there with Hughes; they belonged to Kingston; Hughes gave me some silver and I went up town; the next we came to the ground, a kind of "hang-out" for tramps; stayed there until the Toronto local came in from Peterboro; suppose it was about 7 o'clock in the evening; I bought some provisions and whiskey in the town, and cooked a meal in the grove; gave the children something to eat, and persuaded them to go home; during the afternoon we went to town for whiskey; I had a revolver; Hughes knew of it; I struck one of the Port Hope fellows in the face with it, and think I shot a shot. Did not see where the bullet went but into the lake; I have "Frank" Gamble of Port Hope; was there with us; left Port Hope about 6 o'clock on a freight, with Penn and Hughes; went down to Cobourg; stayed in the barn between the cross roads east of the fair ground; no one was in the barn; I had a revolver; I think I went into the town in Cobourg; bought cigars for them; in the afternoon Chief Rankin came down and examined us; Penn and I both had a revolver; Hughes had not; Chief Rankin examined our revolvers; Chief Rankin asked me to hand Penn's to him; he told me to do it; I did so and Penn did not object; I think Penn had a shot in his revolver; I think we had; I remember Chief Rankin asking me if I had been in the Kingston penitentiary; I told him I had been in the penitentiary; I told him I had been in the penitentiary; I told him I had been in the Spring.

Hark! 'Tis the song of the birds
Wafting from tree to tree;
What is the song they are singing
In tones of such wonderful glee?
Open the casement and listen,
The sounds of new life fill the air;
Sunshine and joy are prevailing,
And Nature looks wondrously fair.

Look at the mantle of green
Like a carpet spread over the ground;
And see how the sweet-scented blossoms
Are diffusing their fragrance around;
The trees, too, are budding and swelling
With foliage verdant and bright—
Ah! winter is gone with its shadows,
And spring has come with its light.

Winter is gone with its shadows,
Its storms, its frosts, and its gloom;
Spring has come with its sunshine,
Its beauty, its life, and its bloom;
Not a trace of the dreary, cold winter,
Now is seen in the beautiful spring;
Yet if storms and the frosts were essential,
Perfect beauty and new life to bring.

Thus in the life we are living,
Storms and sorrows we have to pass through,
But if our trust is in Jesus,
He will help us them all to subdue;
Then in that fairest of spring times,
When our bodies new life shall be given,
In beauty, in glory we'll meet Him,
And ascend to the mansion in Heaven.

Not a trace of this wintry life
Will be seen in that glorious day;
Sunshine eternal will greet us,
The shadows be all passed away;
Redeemed by the blood of the Saviour,
This mortal, immortal shall be—
Oh, what a heavenly prospect,
Our dear, loving Saviour to see!

The Beautiful Napanee.

To the Editor.—The publication of the interesting sketches of local history by your able correspondent, Mr. T. W. Casey, has suggested that perhaps the following lines may add interest to local geography. They have been lying in manuscript form for eleven years, and now recall to the memory of the writer the feelings of delight experienced upon the beginning of his acquaintanceship with the Napanee River. There are few lovelier drives than those along its banks, especially from Napanee to Newburgh.
W. H. T.

Calm is the flow of thy waters enticing;
Solemn and still, to thine own heart confiding,
But thou art no shade shorn of freedom and strife;
Thine, thine is the calmness of the morn's opening life

And life all about thee adds charms to thine own,
The woodbine and shade tree both bow to thy throne;
The tansy-crowned hillock, the green ways
sweet,
The wild flax and lily, and each dipping bank's edge.

The willows and buttercups, sad, yet will hope
Heaven's buoyant life drinking, down to th stoop—
The white, swaying elder and modest blue mint,
Contribute their treasures, on thy glories intent.

The ambitious basswood for freedom aspiring
The bittersweet gay dependently twining—
Silvered leaf poplar with youth loving daisy,
Whisper strains of Life, Love, Time and Eternity.

The hanging elms ready their shade to extend,
The stout hearted oaks ever sure to defend—
And crowned banks rising, then rolling away,
Enfold thee, defend thee, or asleep on thee lay.

I float mid thy calm now, and drift on thy stream,
In the calm of thy life to be lost in a dream.
Thou art Life! And life aglow with life's story;
Thou art Life with its potency, promise and glory.

Fretted and curved is thy onward course flowing,
Revealing what is, what may be unknowing;
Now hidden and deep, like retired lives unknown,
Now out in the tumult and the blaze of renown.

Calm as the flow of thy waters enticing,
So calm be my heart in thy source abiding;
Be my life as thine in shadow or sunlight,
Be mine, mine the calmness not of weakness but might.

THE NORTH-WEST FLOODS.

Entire Valley of the Red River from Grand Forks, N. D., to Morris, Man., and Beyond Transformed Into a Vast Inland Sea.

PEMBINA, N. DAK., April 28th.—The steamer Grand Forks returned last evening after making several trips down the Red River, for the purpose of aiding the flood sufferers. The situation in the low-lying district from Grand Forks to Pembina is appalling. It is one vast sea of desolation, wreck and ruin. The people along the river, with few exceptions, were warned in time, and took their families, stock and everything they could move back to the higher land on the borders of the valley. A few families remained perched in the second stories of their houses or barns, without fires and in numerous cases, with very few provisions. Only three cases of drowning were authenticated. Men were sent out in boats to afford such aid as was found necessary. In some places the steamer was as much as three miles from the river channel, but barb wire fences and fence posts interfered materially with navigation across the prairies. At Pembina, N.D., the steamer made its landing over the main street. The flood had just about reached its high water stage when the steamer left Pembina. All along the route could be seen wrecked houses, barns, granaries, etc. Some school houses were floating down the river, numerous houses were completely demolished, others overturned and others torn to pieces by the storm of the previous Sunday. Many farmers lose their seed grain and others lose everything. If one of the ancient lake dwellers came back to earth and found himself among the settlers along the Red River northward to Morris, Man., he would certainly believe he had came among some descendant branch of his race, such is the condition of the country owing to the exceptionally heavy spring freshets. Coming from the south, house after house and farm buildings as well, are standing in water, varying in depth from one foot to twelve feet, and though one may hope as one may, it seems inevitable that more will be in the same plight ere many hours, and much loss of live stock and other property will undoubtedly ensue.

All along the river in the flooded portions north of Pembina the people upon whose houses the water had encroached did not appear to realize the gravity of the situation, and bore their inconvenience with cheerfulness, but after learning the state of affairs among the farmers south of Pembina the prospects of further difficulties for those down the river must excite the sympathy of all who have known of flood condition. The people did not calculate on the water escaping from the confines of the main stream at low places, and flowing down depressed portions of land immediately behind them. But this is what has happened and now many of them have to resort in boats and wagons through wide stretches of water. Their live stock in some instances will probably have to be abandoned to their fate. In some houses people were living in the second stories, with boats pulled in the doorways for present use in getting about to look after stock, and also no doubt to be used at the last moment to escape when the houses became no longer tenable. It is rather distressing to see people living in barns, which have been requisitioned when the water got too high in their houses. Small patches of land in which their stables and manure heaps were the principal objects visible were inhabited by bands of horses and cattle and other farm animals and poultry. Animals were also to be seen on top of stables and straw stacks. All this was indeed a desolate spectacle and the fact that the inundation might last for days increased one's sympathy tenfold for both human beings and dumb brutes. It must not be supposed that there are not places high and dry.

Approaching Morris, sections of sidewalks, hen-coops, barns, bridges, wreckage and other debris are floating down stream. The scene that lay before one was bewildering. No dry land in the town of Morris can be seen. Tops of trees and sometimes a branch of large growth were noticed, but all of the familiar roads that cross and intercede the land and reach towards Morris are hidden under several feet of water. The Episcopal church was recognized by its steeple and roof. The greater part of the gothic windows were lost to view under the murky overflow. Nearly every house is without an inhabitant. Where the borders of this great sheet of water were, was a puzzle. To the south the sheet of water had no visible shore, its eastern and western strands were also unrecognizable and through it all, the swift current of the Red river could be distinctly traced forcing its way in a ceaseless flow. In front of one store sixteen boats were moored and all the residents soon became proficient in the Venetian art. "It came down like a thief in a night," said one gentleman describing the watery invasion. A great number of men were busy at work securing the drifting sidewalks, which were much broken up, and will involve a large expenditure to repair.

The Northern Pacific Railway company placed a train of cars at the disposal of the citizens for the cattle and goods they wished to get out of the way of the water. The Northern Pacific is flooded from Morris southward and the Brandon branch is also under water for a long distance westward. It seems that the people in the Red river valley were deceived in supposing there would be no high water owing to its slow rise, no different to the 1868 flood, but at this writing it is a foot and a half higher than in that year. None of the settlers were suffering for want of food but the cold was severe and animals could not find shelter, and were standing in water upon impromptu rafts or soggy barnyards surrounded by water. The following day dawned bright, the glorious sun sending its warm rays down upon a scene of desolation. The warmth was welcome after the cold of the proceeding days. Horses, cattle and pigs in groups of from ten to two hundred were standing on little elevations for a distance of ten or fifteen miles. At one point on a high ridge a number of farmers were camped with their families, live stock, etc., and the point referred to was the only dry spot for miles. The N. P. bridge is covered with box cars to keep the bridge from floating away, and the water is up to the axles of the cars. Assistant Superintendent Murray, the roadmaster, and a large gang of men were doing all that was possible to protect the property, and it was a nervous lot of passengers that were on the train; and it was a sigh of relief to all when the bridge was safely crossed. Such is the situation of the Red River valley at present.

Yours very truly,
T. F. HOGE.

Bishop B. W. Arnett

SWAYS AUDIENCES WITH HIS MASTERLY ELOQUENCE.

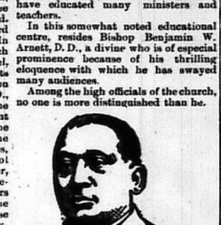
He Writes a Letter of More Than Usual Interests to Suffering Humanity.

At Wilberforce, Ohio, three miles north of Xenia and near Dayton and Springfield, is located Wilberforce University and Payne Theological Seminary.

These two institutions of learning have educated many ministers and teachers.

In this somewhat noted educational centre, resides Bishop Benjamin Arnett, D.D., a divine who is of especial prominence because of his thrilling eloquence with which he has swayed many audiences.

Among the high officials of the church, no one is more distinguished than he.



BISHOP B. W. ARNETT.

Before being elected bishop he was a leading minister in his church and also a very prominent Republican. He represented his county in the Ohio Legislature for several years.

Having given this sketch of the bishop, the following testimonial from him will be found very interesting reading, and fully explains itself.

To whom it may concern:

"In April, 1894, while on my way home from Philadelphia, I caught a very severe cold, which soon developed into rheumatism. It was impossible for me to rest by day or sleep by night. About the first of June I was compelled to take to my bed, where I remained for some time. When I was able to get up, I could only get about by the use of crutches.

"The fall came on and the rheumatism grew worse, lasting all through the winter of '94 and '95. I suffered as I never suffered before. I thought that the spring would bring me relief, but it did not, consequently I was forced to cancel a number of engagements to speak.

"One day in June, 1895, my wife said, 'Bishop, I read so much about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills, suppose you try them and see if they will not help you?'

"I said, 'No, there is no use of getting them for we have tried almost everything that has been recommended to us, and none of the remedies suggested seem to help my case.

"She said no more, but went to Xenia, Ohio, and bought a box of the pills. On her return she gave me a dose at noon and another at night. She was only called one time to attend to me during that night.

"For months previous she has been called three to four times during the night. The next day I took three doses of the pills, and the second night I was not disturbed. My wife, for the first time in more than ten months, had a good night's sleep.

"I have not lost a night's sleep since that time on account of the rheumatism. I carry a box of Dr. William's Pink Pills in my pocket wherever I go.

"I cheerfully bear testimony and hope that others may find relief as I did. I have recommended Dr. Williams' Pink Pills to several people.

"Yours for God and Man.
BENJAMIN W. ARNETT."

Dr. Williams' Pink Pills cure by going to the root of the disease. They renew and build up the blood, and strengthen the nerves, thus driving disease from the system. Avoid imitations by insisting that every box you purchase is enclosed in a wrapper bearing the full trade mark, Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People.

We are very sorry to relate this week the death of Mrs. Paul Stein, (nee Marquardt), who was born on the 19th Feb., in the year of our Lord 1847, in Silicia, baptized in infancy and in due season instructed in the doctrines of her church where she was confirmed. In course of time the parents and family emigrated for this country to abide here. It was by divine providence her lot to find private and future home with the now widowed husband whom she met with, bethrothed herself and was united in holy wedlock on the 15th June, 1869. From this union sprang thirteen children, seven boys and six girls, all with the widowed father bemourn the loss of a faithful helpmate and loving mother, as do also the aged mother, brothers and other relatives of the deceased. Being long and severely afflicted from heart trouble the departed committed her spirit into the hands of her Lord and Saviour on the 30th April, in the evening, at the age of 49 years, 2 months and 11 days.

Mrs. John Lane, who had been attending her sister, Mrs. Jas. Roy, of Cloyne, who has been seriously ill, returned Saturday evening with little hopes of her sister's recovery.

MOSCOW.

(For last issue.)

What might have proved quite a serious accident happened to Arthur Baker on Tuesday. He had three horses hitched to a cultivator and stepped a few feet away from them to get something when they took a notion to a little exercise. They went through the gate without stopping to open it and then dashed up the road. Before going very far they decided to halt and let Arthur catch up, and when secured it was found that the cultivator was the only thing that had suffered in any extent. Moral—Arthur, don't tie your horses up lose.

DR. JACK'S WIFE

By ST. GEORGE RATHBORNE

Author of "Dr. Jack," "Captain Tom," "Miss Caprice," Etc., Etc.

This many philanthropic reasons appear to lord Rackett why he should terminate this little engagement in which he gets decidedly the worst of it. He suddenly makes a supreme effort, and breaks away from the other's hold. Jack is not particularly anxious for the company, although bent on delivering punishment. He never seeks a quarrel, and yet they find him always ready to take care of himself.

When he discovers that he is not pursued, the Briton turns in the door-way to hurl defiance back at the man with whom he has just been engaged, and assure him they will meet again. Evidently the date of that meeting is not the present, for when Doctor Jack makes a rush in that direction Lord Rackett Pymptom vanishes like the morning mist in the valleys of the stately Andes.

Jack looks around, and is just in time to see the Chilian senorita endeavoring to leave the room. Larry sees fit to block the door, bowing, with one hand on his heart, and what was meant to be a killing smile upon his face; but Marilla de los Vegos snatches a small dagger from her bosom, and at sight of it the dude quickly steps aside, again bowing as he allows her to depart. Larry has no desire to run contrary to the will of an infuriated beauty who handles such toys.

The first part of Jack Evans, when the clouds of battle have passed and victory is assured, is to turn and take his wife in his arms, and Avis, pleased to know that her passage of love has been successful, smiles in his face as she nestles near his heart, feeling that the plots of the lovely senorita to steal her Jack can never succeed.

"We must get out of this, by Jove!" remarks the little man, soberly.

"Larry, my dear boy, how are you? Shake hands. Like old times to set eyes on your honest phiz again. What brings you to this republic of the Pacific, for I take it you are not here by mere accident?"

"Tell you later, dear boy—concerns your welfare, too. At present it strikes me the sooner we quit this palatial twap the better."

"Wise Larry. That long head of yours is full of bright thoughts. For my part"—with a perceptible shudder and a curious look at Jack—"I have not the slightest desire to remain here a minute longer than I can help. We can have a good explanation later. What are those papers—ah! the bait with which I was drawn into the trap? It may pay me to take them along and examine them at my leisure."

So saying, he gathers them up, after which the trio start to leave the house. Various sounds can be heard in different parts of the mansion, which is certainly far from being quiet now; but they move along unmolested, and presently reach the front door.

Down the steps they pass, heading for the large gate. If this should be closed they may experience new trouble. A chance will then be offered for Larry to show his mettle and demolish the obstruction, though the chances are it will require all the muscular force which Doctor Jack can bring to bear in order to break down such a barrier.

Fortune favors them. The heavy gate is still ajar just as Avis and Cousin Larry left it, and in another moments, with relieved and thankful hearts, the trio reach the Calle los Angeles.

All is plain sailing from this on. At the point of the junction with the main street Doctor Jack sights a vehicle that will hold them all, so he hails the driver. It chances to be a private carriage, but what of that? The magic silver proves too much for the driver, and he agrees to carry them all to the fonda, which they presently reach.

Time—nine-twenty.

A good deal has occurred since the sun went down in the west, and considerably more is upon the programme for the next twenty four hours. The world will be electrified by an event that has been impending for some time, but of that more anon.

When Doctor Jack has seen Avis safe in their rooms at the hotel, and an explanation has been given on both sides that clears up all hazy points connected with this singular affair, he asks to be excused for a short time, as Larry awaits him below. Larry who has come to Chili on a mission, and whose business is a long and never showed the white feather. Why, you are trembling all over. What does this mean?"

The discovery he has made alarms him. Her health is more to him than all else.

"Oh! Jack, since you left me, as I sat in my chair, I had a terrible dream. It seemed to me as though they had poisoned you."

"Heaven forbid! I don't look like a dead man, do I, Avis dear?" he says, cheerily.

"It made a strong impression on my mind, and the first thing my eyes fell upon as I awoke shuddering, was the bowl of beef tea which was sent in for you some time ago."

He laughs.

"And, of course, you imagined some one had been meddling with it. Come, my dear girl, the sooner we are out of this country the better it will be for your nerves, which have been dreadfully tried of late."

"Oh! Jack, what would I not give if both of us were in New York, or on our California farm. This foolish notion, as you term it, grew upon me instead of departed: in imagination. I could see a dozen vipers in that bowl—it grew abhorrent to me."

"And so you threw it away," noting that it no longer rests upon the table.

"Why, my dear, if it were still here I would speedily prove to you the harmless quality of the beef tea."

"By drinking it?"

"Yes, as I have often done before, since my sickness last spring."

"I feared as much, so—I tested it."

"Ah, you drank it, then!" a little uneasily, looking into her pale face.

"No, no, thank heaven I was not that foolish. You remember the Maltese cat that made friends with me when we first took these rooms?"

"Yes, yes."

"Just when I was worrying over what I should do, I heard her cry outside the door. A sudden thought flashed into my mind. I let her come in, poor thing."

"Poor thing!" he echoes, his flesh beginning to creep.

"My next move was to put the bowl down on the floor, and pussy began to eagerly lap up the contents. That was at half-past nine o'clock exactly."

"Yes," his voice is low and awed now, as though he has caught the infection of her alarm.

"When she had lapped about a quarter of the fluid, the cat stopped, and I breathlessly awaited the result."

"Well, what came of it, dear?"

She points to something on the floor.

"Under that traveling-shawl, Jack."

He springs forward, lends, and snatches the shawl away; then a cry bursts from his lips. Lying upon the floor is the body of a gray cat, stretched in such a shape that its death must have been one of agony.

"Heavens, this is terrible!" says Doctor Jack, as he stands there and gazes, while Avis clutches hold of his arm in a trembling way.

The thought which almost paralyzes Jack is in connection with Avis; what if the dark scheme of this devil's brood, Sure Providence has watched over them both.

"I knew my enemies hated me, but it never entered my mind that they would descend to such a thing as poison. What more could be expected in this country after a bitter civil war, when the passions of men have been inflamed to the utmost. It gave you a shock; I don't wonder at it."

Grinding his teeth with rage, he takes up the defunct animal. His first thought is to toss it out upon the street, but then he remembers he may need some evidence.

"I will leave it in the hallway," he says.

"But you are not going out now, Jack?"

"There is more reason than ever that I should seek the Intendente; when such diabolical business is being carried on he should know the facts. I leave you armed, Avis, and Larry is close at hand. You are not afraid?"

"For myself—no. It is of you I think," she replies, her old brave nature asserting itself.

"Do not worry. I shall take a carriage at the door, and come back the same way. The distance is not far. I will return in an hour."

He examines the beef tea that remains, and even pours a portion into a vial.

"Perhaps he may wish to have a sample analyzed. It may assist the ends of justice, so I will go prepared."

Doctor Jack embraces his wife and then leaves the apartment, taking the poor feline with him. His feelings are of a more intense form than when he parted, for this last horrible blow of an unscrupulous foe has unsettled his iron nerves.

It is evident that the situation is ripe around him, ready to strike in the dark. He pauses to think that Avis is here with him, exposed to their designs. If she were only safe, he could feel easier, but as it is—

[illegible] of the hotel to see what is the matter, for although scenes of violence are frequent in the streets, they never fail to create excitement. The report of a pistol or rifle balls has always been a drawing card in Chili, though of late the laws are becoming more severe in this regard, and a fine has been imposed upon the populace about as well. They are fast becoming educated along the republic of the Andes.

Nothing is to be seen, save a wee speck in the distance, and only after through speculation can they reach the truth. Doctor Jack does not linger, but a minute later gives the peculiar tap on his door which Avis recognizes, and it proves an "open sesame," admitting him to the second precincts beyond.

While Avis relocks and barricades the door her liege lord gropes for a chair, and, throwing himself into its depths, laughs as though he would take a fit.

"Well, you seem amused. Suppose you share the subject?" she says, sitting on the arm of the chair and stroking Doctor Jack's curly hair.

"Ye gods! I shall never forget how that fellow came down, floundering like a great bear. You brave little woman, I declare—"

"Oh, that's it! Well, I meant he should go, and gave him the benefit of the whole can of hot water heated on our little oil stove here," she remarks, composedly, as though such a feat were an everyday occurrence. "And now, Jack, if you can control your laughter, tell me what you have seen and done since you left here."

CHAPTER IX.

The balance of this singular night in Valparaiso passes without adventure. Doctor Jack, taking warning from what other innocent party for a victim, has given Jack an uneasiness quite foreign to his nature.

He begins his walk.

The hour has grown late, and it is just lacking seventeen minutes of midnight when he leaves the Intendencia. At this time the Chilian seaport might naturally be expected to have an air of quiet resting upon its streets.

It is just the contrary.

The success of the rebellion against Balmaceda has excited all the elements in the city to such an extent that they seem to be holding a sort of picnic of rejoicing all the while. One from the States might readily believe an election had just taken place, for bonfires blaze here and there, while it is nothing unusual to hear a gun go off. Perhaps before settling down to a business life again the Chilians desire to use up the superfluous ammunition left over after the late unpleasantness.

Jack keeps to the main street, and avoids all crowds that seem noisy, if by crossing over to the other side he can do so. Many a fracas occurs, but as the participants are natives, the spark is not applied to the magazine. That explosion is left for another twenty-four hours.

At last he sights the hotel. His own position is now central, and the four that pushes itself into his mind is in connection with his wife.

He glances up at the windows which belong to his rooms. All is dark there, and no sign of life can be seen, but this is just as Avis has said it would be.

It was here, just beneath the window at the corner, that Jack left Avis and his Chilian ally came to a halt as if by accident, and held their pretended conversation concerning Doctor Jack, which saturated with venom and especially intended for the ears of the wife seated above. Jack smiles as he remembers how this carefully arranged scheme fell to the ground, because Avis Evans had such perfect confidence in her husband.

Then, as he stands there, he remembers, too, the beautiful Chilian woman who has conceived such a passion for him, and shudders as he thinks, for somehow her adoration acts upon him as might the evil charm of a serpent, for Doctor Jack is an honorable man, deeply in love with his wife.

He has only stopped here a minute or so to recover breath after his rapid walk, and calm himself ere appearing before Avis.

Fate sometimes manipulates things in a queer way. Even this thirty seconds, during which he stands there, are destined to be marked by an event. It would seem as though he had been allowed to reach the scene in order to be a witness of the bravery of the woman he calls his wife.

As he glances up again toward the point where, as he well knows, the windows of his rooms are situated, Doctor Jack receives a start. Not more than fifteen feet of which he is aware, and against the background of sky he sees a protuberance fastened to the face of the building.

While Jack gazes, spell-bound, it moves, and he makes out beyond all question the figure of a man. This is a strange place for one to cling to like a monkey. No man would be in such a position unless he has evil intentions. It flashes through the mind of the American that some enemy seeks to do him harm. He is surrounded by so many who wish him ill that it is folly attempting to bother his head concerning the identity of this fellow.

Of course, he may be an ordinary thief, for the city has more than its usual quota of this species. Doctor Jack ponders concerning his best move, and handles his revolver with the idea of a man who feels half impelled to use it, yet hesitates because he hates to shed the blood of a human being, however much the other may deserve it.

And while he thus deliberates the matter is taken out of his hands. Some one is conscious of the fact whom he has forgotten to figure on—Avis.

The figure clinging to the wall makes another movement. Evidently he has stopped to rest his feet, for he is because Jack's footsteps on the pavement alarmed him; but if this latter is the case he has bravely overcome his fear, since his movement is deliberate enough.

By this time the fellow has his hands upon the window-sill. What if Avis sleeps—the watcher smiles grimly with the satisfaction he feels at such a thought—surely a little cherub aloft must be watching over his fortunes.

It is time something was done, and Jack slowly raises his hand to wring the dark man thus outlined against the sky, to bring him down to the pavement a crippled wretch, howling with agony and fear.

At this moment occurs the event not down on the bills. Doctor Jack plainly hears the swish of liquid forces, and sees something ooze from the window. A few drops even splash upon his face and feel like flashes of fire, such is the heat contained in them.

As for the rogue who clings to the wall, and receives the full benefit of the fiery deluge, he gives one wild shriek of anguish. His hands release their clutch upon the window-sill above and down he comes in a heap.

Some good fortune causes him to drop in a sitting posture, and this, although doubtless breaking his fall, results in a fractured limb. Perhaps he hears a second deluge of hot water, or it may be his burns have on him wild. At any rate, it is the last he ever contrives to think for a long time, for he rolls over on the pavement, and then rather down the calle, groaning and howling with pain and fear.

[illegible] pulsable man, sir, but must be on hand to attend to my business. As for this fellow, he is a well-to-do [illegible] who was to wed Doctor Jack's widow."

The officer laughs aloud.

"Pardon, but it is too comical. I have seen much of these Chilians, and they are brave, too, but so full of boast—caramba! the world belongs to them—we all breathe only because they are magnanimous. Doctor Jack, I tell you I myself would give ten pesos to be present when you again come in contact with this Plympton."

Really, Doctor Jack is beginning to believe the Valparaiso chief of police may be a pleasant sort of fellow after all.

When he leaves him he has not learned a great deal to be sure, but the mantle of police protection is cast upon him, whatever that may count for. At any rate, he has the right to protect himself.

The Chilian has suggested that he go on board the Baltimore. Captain Schley would dauntless receive a fellow-citizen of the great republic, who has become so well known as Doctor Jack, with the greatest pleasure in the world, and make quarters for himself and wife on board —at least until their vessel leaves.

It is worth thinking over.

Jack reaches the street. No vehicle can be seen, and he is now really sorry he let the other go. He might have kept the river in his employ, and between the gift of silver and the threat of lead influenced him to be faithful.

There is only one thing to be done—he must use shanks' mare and thus reach the fonda. His thoughts are with Avis. Heaven grants nothing else has occurred during his absence. The terrible nature of the last shaft, so recklessly aimed as him that it might easily have taken another party for a victim, has given Jack an uneasiness quite foreign to his nature.

The success of the rebellion against Balmaceda has excited all the elements in the city to such an extent that they seem to be holding a sort of picnic of rejoicing all the while. One from the States might readily believe an election had just taken place, for bonfires blaze here and there, while it is nothing unusual to hear a gun go off. His Cheque Good

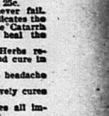
For Hundreds of Thousands of Dollars.



He Finds in Paine's Celery Compound a New Life.

In one of our large Canadian cities there resides one of Canada's merchant princes who can at any moment write his cheque for hundreds of thousands of dollars.

Some time ago this merchant prince was a very sick man. Liver troubles, headache and insomnia were fast pulling down a strong physical frame. Doctors bestowed great care and attention on their wealthy patient, but no cure came to cheer him; in fact no perceptible benefit was felt after months of treatment.

A voyage to the south of Europe was then undertaken, and weeks were spent at one of the most famous watering places, but no change for the better was experienced. Returning home, the merchant prince received a visit from his faithful pastor, who strongly urged the use of Paine's Celery Compound, a medicine that had done years before cured a member of his family. The good advice of the ministerial friend was promptly taken; the great healing compound was used, with the results that in five weeks the sick man and his family were overjoyed with proofs of recovery and new health. Restful sleep was restored, digestion was improved, and a brighter look came into the eyes and face. After four months' careful use of Paine's Celery Compound and proper dieting, every deadly and treacherous symptom of disease had vanished, and the merchant prince was a new man.

What a wondrous and happy proof of the life-saving virtues of Paine's Celery Compound! Surely the statement is powerful enough to lift all poor and helpless sufferers from the dark pit of despair.

This story of a true cure was related by an intimate friend of the cured man who gave permission to refer to it publicly without giving the name of the owner.

BATH.

The steamer Hero took the North King's route last Sunday, down the bay.

The sloop Madcap arrived at Mr. Bull's wharf last night, with a load of lumber and shingles, and after unloading it she took a cargo of grain for Kingston.

Ronald Rix was home yesterday on a short visit.

Thomas Johnston, of New York, formerly of Bath, is home on a visit to his mother, Mrs. Wm. Johnston.

The Rev. Mr. Lewis, of Kingston, conducted the services in the St. John's church last Sunday, in the absence of the Rev. Mr. Baker, R. D. The Rev. Mr. Godden, of Belleville, will have charge of the services next Sabbath.

The Rev. Mr. Baker has been back again this last couple of days, visiting among his people. He is looking slightly improved. Mr. Baker is very much missed in Bath. He was a great worker and a very genial and kind-hearted man, always ready to help the sick and to push on any good work that might be set forth. We wish him a speedy recovery, so that he may be able to attend his duties the same as he has in former times.

S. McAvoy is one of the hustlers of our town. He certainly seems to be doing a great business. We can only say, push ahead Robert, you are bound to get there.

The Rev. Mr. McDiarmid, chairman of the Bath district of the Methodist church, was in town Monday attending a meeting of the quarterly board.

May 24ths expects to leave for Rochester next Sunday night. May will be missed very much as she was one of the leading singers in the Methodist choir.

Charlie Wonyck and Miss Paul passed through Bath last Thursday evening.

Several of our young people intend going to Morven, Friday night.

MORVEN.

The Union Cheese Factory is doing great work this spring. The average amount of cheese is nine daily, with about 900 lbs. of milk. This is a great deal better than the same date last year. The greatest amount of milk sent in by a patron is from Hawley. Mr. James Meyers is the lucky man. He averages 500 lbs. daily and expects to double the weight in a short time.

I noticed a statement made in THE BEAVER by our Morven correspondent about a young man, from the Union Cheese Factory, going to Bath to pick May flowers. That is not correct as the said young man was at his home in Selby on that day, and does not go to Bath. They must have been mistaken in the sound of the drum, as it could not have been heard by your witty correspondent on that day.

Mr. Editor, what do you think of a party of young people going to an entertainment and the young men giving the young ladies the entrance fee to give at the door. Our motto is, pay the money and stay with the girls.

James Hicks has returned from Uncle Sam's dominion and reports hard times there with lots of work, even on Sundays, Jim don't like that style of work.

Edith Warren is visiting her aunt, Mrs. McKeown, at the post office.

A number from here intend going to Bath on the 27th of June, to hear A. McNeil deliver his celebrated lecture on Orangeism. Sam is a favorite in Morven, and a number of our young ladies intend going.

Norman Garrison traded horses with Mr. Schell, of Big Creek.

Marsh Rombough was visiting friends in Kingston last week.

It is understood a large album will be given to the first couple getting married in Morven, in the month of June. It will be exhibited at the York museum, where the milk wagon starts.

Fannie Funnell, our most highly esteemed dress-maker, is busy at Mr. Vanslyck's. Fanny is a splendid dress-maker and a favorite with all, on her 2 call.

F. L. Tooker has made a brilliant look on the house of John M. Davy, by painting the woodwork.

Mr. Davis, our popular carpenter, has erected a new verandah at the post office.

Hurrah for the social to-night, at the White church. A big time is expected.

Some people are complaining of wet weather, but of course I can't say much as I haven't been away from Morven, my native plain, and the home of my birth, 16 years ago. But some places want rain, by the appearance of the people on Sunday last. There were a few here who were almost gone, like a house plant, withered to the ground.

SPORTING.

CYCLING.

The proprietor having kindly opened a column of his valuable paper for contributions on wheeling, I have promised to do something to make it interesting reading. My main object will be the advocacy of the claims of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association on all bicyclists, and increase in membership of our local organization, the "Jubilee Bicycle Club."

The objects of the Canadian Wheelmen's Association are stated in the constitution as follows:

a. To promote the general interests of cycling in Canada.

b. To ascertain, defend and protect the rights of wheelmen.

c. To encourage and facilitate touring.

d. To secure improvement in the condition of the public roads and highways of the Dominion.

e. To control and govern track bicycle racing and racing bicyclists, both amateur and professional, in Canada.

f. To establish and regulate bicycle championships for Canada and its constituent provinces.

Any amateur wheelman in good standing shall be eligible for membership by making application on the regular form and paying $1 per year; any club of five or more members by paying a fee of 50 cents a member.

The principal officers of the Association were elected on Good Friday, and are as follows: G. H. Orr, Toronto, president; C. W. Wells, Waterloo, vice-president; Hal. B. Donly, Simcoe, secretary-treasurer.

Sec. 9 of Art. V. reads as follows: Every member shall have the right to apply for and receive from any chief consul, representative or consul for his district, such aid or information as may be in their power to give.

Sec. 10 reads,—Members shall attend and accord mutual hospitality, companionship and assistance whenever practicable and appropriate, and the production of a membership ticket shall be sufficient introduction.

The association has about 10,000 members now, with prospects of a large increase. The Jubilee Bicycle Club, of Napanee, has already joined the Association, and has made its own fees so low that any bicyclist can afford to join it, and thereby become a member of the Association as well. The fees are 75 cents for resident male members, 60 cents for non-residents, and 50 cents for ladies. Mr. F. C. Anderson is secretary.

As this contribution is mainly introductory it has dealt with cycling mainly from a business standpoint. There are many other arguments in favor of every bicyclist becoming a member of the Local Club, as we have good officers and will likely make it an interesting season for the sport here. TOURIST.

George Low, of the Merchant' bank, Kingston, established a record by wheeling from the top of Robbs's hill, Napanee, to Odessa, twelve miles, in twenty-seven minutes.

The Jubilee Bicycle club will take the first club run of the season this evening (Friday), leaving the market square, at 7.15, to Desoronto, via Belleville road and boundary, to attend the weekly band concert there. Ladies are requested to join the party as well as the wheelmen.

The Montreal Turnpike Co. is asking for power to collect tolls on bicycles using its roads. Wheelmen have a good right to the roads as pedestrians, and if they are taxed the road companies should provide them a separate track other than that used for traffic.

FOOTBALL.

Napanee and Kingston teams will line up at 1.30 on the athletic grounds, Kingston, on Monday next.

The fourth game of the Quinte League series was played at Deseronto on Saturday last between Deseronto and Sydenham, the latter winning by a score of four to nothing. Samuel Truscott, one of the Sydenham team, had his leg broken. A correspondent, writing of the occurrence, bears down rather heavily on the Deseronto team. He says: "It is said that with the exception of four or five of their men Deseronto are a set of rough, uncouth and uncultured fellows. To the four or five 'gentlemen' in the team the boys of Sydenham extend their sympathy at their lot being cast among such men. For the second time in about a week have there in a match broken the leg of one of their opponents. Is not this a very suggestive fact? Of course men are liable to get disabled at any match; all will admit that fact, and through no roughness on either side, but when it occurs more in succession than is usual, one begins to think the disabled ones, there must be something radically wrong with such a team."

BASEBALL.

The Napanee Club have received a challenge to play at Newburgh on the 24th. Owing to a number of our players having made previous engagements for the day, it is not likely that a game will be played.

The Printers nine are now ready to play any of the trade teams. Come, boys, let's get started.

CURLING

A meeting of the Curling Club is called for Tuesday evening, 25th inst., at 8 o'clock, at the office of Messrs. Herrington & Warner, to complete arrangements for next season's ice, etc., and to adopt a code of by-laws.

J. D. BISSONNETTE, Secy.

—Myron B. Mill's big black dog was poisoned on Friday nigh; last.

—Edward Gates, painter in the employ of Alex. Armstrong, is seriously ill with pneumonia.

—The genial face of Mr. Eli Sedore was seen on the market Tuesday, the first since his severe sickness.

—Mr. Fielding announces that the tariff will be again brought before the house of Commons on May 25.

—The Czar made a direct appeal to the Sultan to order his troops to cease hostilities and arrange an armistice, and the latter at once complied.

—J. R. Dafoe has had the rolls in the big mill thoroughly overhauled and put in first class order. They were sent to Toronto for the purpose.

—A bill is being introduced into parliament to authorize the bondholders of the Kingston and Pembroke Railway to sell the road. It is represented as bankrupt.

—F. W. Wakefork, of Kingston, is being sued for $3,000 damages. The plaintiff is Mrs. Christopher Byrnes, of Napanee, acting on behalf of her daughter. The young woman is a resident of Toronto.

—The petition of Belleville wheelmen to ride on certain sidewalks was presented to the council of that city on Monday evening. It was elegantly snubbed.

—Mrs. Thomas Russell, of Brantford, attempted to shoot her five young children by throwing them into the cistern. Neighbors rescued the little ones. The unfortunate woman is insane.

—Eleven Napanee Oddfellows went up to Deseronto on Tuesday evening and were initiated into the Rebecca degree of the order in that town. After the ceremonies were over tea was served and dancing indulged in. The boys say they were entertained right royally.

—The farmers evidently do not agree with our reform friends on the license board. During court week eighteen of the twenty four jurors made their headquarters at the Tete de Pont house, for which the committee refused to grant a license for the coming year.

—The Postmaster General has had a special jubilee issue of postage stamps prepared. They bear pictures of Queen Victoria in 1837 and in 1897. The first set will be sent to the Duke of York, who is a famous stamp collector, and the second set will be sent to Lord Aberdeen. A set will also be given to each of the members of Parliament.

—Any amateur can take a photograph which will satisfy himself, but the public will not be so easily satisfied. Only long experience and ability to pose so as to secure the best effects, with a careful observance of details, will commend the public confidence. Artist Richardson has a provincial reputation as a photographer, and when you patronize him you are sure to be pleased.

—Mr. R. B. Shipman, manager of the Rathbun Co's local branch, is making some improvements, which will add much to the looks of the yard, besides being more convenient for the public. The office has been moved sixty feet from its old position, out into the yard. The vacant spot will be filled up and improved. A freight shed and waiting room 21x26 will be erected immediately adjoining the office, and a sixteen foot platform laid all along the front. Other changes for the better will be made in the near future.

HOUSE OWNERS KNOW that the cheapest way to maintain a good selling value for property is to keep it in good repair. Never let it run down. A delay in the use of paint may not be dangerous, but it is bad business policy. It is poor economy.

Nothing makes more show for the money in brightening up a home than judicious use of paint.

The paint habit is a good habit to have. You should know how easy it is to use a good paint. You should know the right paint to use in the right place. A bath tub, chair, table, cupboard, buggy, wagon, floor, plow, house or a barn will be worth more money if it is well painted. It will look 100 per cent. better.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS CO. makes special paint for all these—a different paint for each purpose—a paint exactly suited to each purpose.

THE SHERWIN-WILLIAMS ENAMEL PAINT is made for decorating the inside of a home. It is for chairs, tables, settees, flower pot—everything where a dainty color and a bright varnish gloss are desired.

Our booklet, "Paint Points," tells the difference between good and bad paint. It tells what to paint and how to paint. Send for it, it is free.

SAMUEL HUFF.

On Thursday, May 6th, at his residence, 47 High street, Bradford, Ps., Mr. Samuel Huff succumbed to a complication of ailments and passed from the scenes of a long and well spent life. Deceased was born in Napanee in 1825, and is a brother of Eliakim Huff and Mrs. David York, of Napanee, and Mrs. James Benn, of Richmond. He was married about fifty-two years ago to Isabel Williams, and removed to Bradford in 1872, where they have since resided. He had been in ill health for a long time, but not until the past few weeks was he compelled to give up outdoor activity and confine himself to his room. All that medical skill could accomplish for his relief was provided, but there was no cure for him. This he fully realized and was entirely prepared for the end. He was conscious to the last moment and his words of counsel and endearment to the loving ones at his bedside indicate how fully reconciled he was to the inevitable. All of Mr. Huff's children were with him at the time of his death. His chief ailment was kidney trouble. He is survived by his wife, three sons and three daughters, the latter being Mmes Blanche, Eliza and Jennie, of Bradford. The sons are John L., of Bradford; William, of Bluffton, O., and S. M., of Prairie Depot, O. The deceased was a member of the Odd Fellows and Foresters of Bradford, and as ex-member of the Bradford School Board. He took an active interest in municipal affairs, and a year ago was a candidate for school councilman from his district. The remains were interred at Union Hill.

GEORGE ASSELSTINE.

Mr. George Asselstine, one of the well known and highly respected farmers of South Fredericksburgh, died quite suddenly at his residence, near Hamburgh, on Sunday evening last. He was in apparent good health on Saturday and at work, as usual, on his farm. About noon he was taken sick and four hours later he became unconscious. Medical aid was soon present but all was of no avail. Shortly after midnight he was dead. He was in the sixty-fifth year of his age. He was the son of George Asselstine, one of the pioneer farmers of that section. The deceased was born and spent all his days on the same farm. He was a man of great industry and intelligence and highly respected by all who knew him. He was a consistent member of the Methodist church from his early boyhood and a class leader for nearly twenty years. In politics he was a Liberal, but never took a prominent part in public affairs. He was township treasurer for a number of years, and at one and every other business position inspired all who came in contact with him with full confidence in his integrity and uprightness. Mr. Asselstine was twice married. His first wife was Ruth, daughter of the late John W. Bristol, who died in Napanee a few years ago. Afterwards he married Miss Ann Fiehle, sister of Rowland B. Fiehle, Esq., of Ivan, who survives him with their three sons, Albert, Frederick, merchant of Moorhead, Minnesota; Charles, who resides on the family homestead, and Herbert, who lives at Ivan, and two daughters, Mrs. Bristol, of Napanee, and Mrs. Geo. Bristol, jr., who live on our townsman, Peter Bristol, Esq., of Piety Hill, and George Cliff, jr. He was an excellent type of the hardy, honest and successful farmers of which this county can well boast. The funeral took place on Wednesday in the Bethel Methodist church, at Hamburgh, after which the remains were interred, and the burial at the Morven cemetery.

HEALTH OF THE BODY

DR. TALMAGE PREACHES UPON OVERWORKED LIVERS.

He Believes That Most of the World's Moral Depressions Are Due to That Hard-worked Organ and Urges His Hearers to Take Care of It.

Washington, May 16.—Dr. Talmage's sermon of to-day has more to do with this life than that to come and will be a warning against all forms of dissipation. Text, Proverbs vii, 23, "Till a dart strike through his liver."

Solomon's anatomical and physiological discoveries were so very great that he was nearly 3,000 years ahead of the scientists of his day. He, more than 1,000 years before Christ, seemed to know about the circulation of the blood, which Harvey discovered 1,619 years after Christ, for in the Solomon, in Ecclesiastes, describing the human body, speaks of the pitcher at the fountain, he evidently means the three principals leading from the heart that receive the blood like pitchers. When he speaks in Ecclesiastes of the silver cord of life, he evidently means the spinal marrow, about which, in our day, Drs. Mayo and Carpenter and Dalton and Flint and Brown-Sequard have experimented. And when recorded in the Bible, thousands of years before scientists discovered it, that in his time the spinal cord seems to set from the cerebellum the tremors of hand and head, "or the silver cord be loosed."

The Liver and Morality.

In the text he reveals the fact that he had studied that largest gland of the human system, the liver, not by the electric light of the modern dissecting room, but by the dim light of a comparatively dark age, and yet had seen its important functions in the God built castle of the human body, its selective and converting power, its curious cells, its elongated branching tube, as divine workmanship in central and right and left lobe, and the hepatic artery through which flow the crimson tides. Oh, this vital organ is like the eye of God in that it never sleeps!

Solomon knew of it, and had noticed either in vivisection or post mortem what awful attacks sin and dissipation make upon it, until the flat of Almighty God bids the body and soul separate, and the one it commends to the grave and the other it sends to judgment. A javelin of retribution, not glancing off from a slight wound, but piercing deep it from side to side "till a dart strikes through his liver."

Galen and Hippocrates ascribe to the liver the most of the work of moral depression, and the word melancholy means black bile.

I preach to you the gospel of health. In taking a diagnosis of your case your soul you must also take a diagnosis of diseases of the body. As if to recognize this, one whole book of the New Testament was written by a physician, Luke was a medical doctor, and he discourses much of the physical conditions, and he tells of the good Samaritan's medication of the wounds by the wayside. He says that wine, and recognizes hunger as a hindrance to hearing the gospel, so that the 5,000 were fed. He also records the spare diet of the prodigal away from home, and the extinguished eyesight of the beggar by the wayside, and lets us know of the incompetence of the wounds of the dying Christ and, the miraculous post mortem resuscitation. Any estimate of the spiritual condition that does not include also the physical condition is incomplete.

When the doorkeeper of congress fell dead from excessive joy because Burgoyne had surrendered at Saratoga, and Philip V. of Spain dropped dead at the news of his country's defeat in battle, and Cardinal Wolsey faded away as the result of Henry VIII's anathemas, it was demonstrated that the body and soul are Siamese twins, and when you thrill the one with joy or sorrow you thrill the other. We may as well recognize the tremendous fact that there are two mighty fortresses in the human body, the heart and the liver; the heart, the fortress of the graces; the liver, the fortress of the furies. You may have the head filled with all intellectualities, and the heart with all musical aspirations, and the mouth with all eloquence, and the hand with all industries, and the heart with all generosities, and yet "a dart strike through the liver."

A Rebellious Liver.

First, let Christian people avoid the mistake that they are all wrong with the world because they suffer from depression of spirits. Many a consecrated man has found his spiritual sky befogged and his hope of heaven shotted out and himself plunged chin deep in the slough of despond, and has said: "My heart is not right with God, and I think I must have made a mistake, and instead of being a child of light I am a child of darkness. No one can feel as gloomy as I feel and be a Christian." And he has gone to his minister for consolation, and he has collected Flavel's books, and Cecil's books, and Baxter's books, and read and read and read, and prayed and prayed and prayed, and wept and wept and wept, and groaned and groaned and groaned. My brother, your trouble is not with the heart. It is a gastric disorder, or a rebellion of the liver. You need a physician more than you do a clergyman. It is not sin that blots out your hope of heaven, but bile. The jolly fellows your eyeballs, and furs your tongue, and makes your head ache, but swoops upon your soul in dejections and foreboding. The devil is after you, but he has failed to despoil your character, and he does the next best thing for him—he ruffles your peace of mind. When he says that you are not a forgiven soul, when he says you are not right with God, when he says that you will never go to heaven, be sure that he is a liar. Christ, you are just as sure of heaven as though you were there already. But satan, finding that he cannot keep you out of the promised land of Canaan, has determined that the spies shall not bring you any of the Eschol grapes beforehand and that you shall have nothing but prickly pear and crabapple. You are just as much a Christian now under the cloud as you were when you were accustomed to rise in the morning at 5 o'clock to pray and sing "Hallelujah, 'tis done!"

My friend Rev. Dr. Joseph F. Jones of Philadelphia, a translated spirit now, wrote a book entitled "Man, Moral and Physical," in which he shows how different the same things may appear to different people. He says: "After the great battle on the Meuse in 1859 between the French and the Sardinians on the one side and the Austrians on the other, so disastrous to the latter, the defeated army retreated, followed by the victors. A description of the march of that army is given by two correspondents of the London Times, one of whom travelled with the successful host, the other with the defeated. The difference in views and statements of the same place, scenes and events is remarkable. The former was said to be marching through a beautiful and happy country, rejoicing the day and at night in the victory of the day, and supplied with all the abundance of the best provisions. The latter

One loaf of bread may be light, sweet and digestible. You may use the same materials for another and have it heavy, sour and soggy. The knack is in putting the ingredients together just right. A substitute for Scott's Emulsion may have the same ingredients and yet not be a perfect substitute, for no one knows how to put the parts together as we do. The secret of "how" is our business—twenty-five years of experience has taught us the best way.

SCOTT & BOWNE, Belleville, Ont.

sorts of rural dainties. There is nothing of war about the proceeding except its stimulus and excitement. On the side of the poor Austrians it is just the reverse. In his letter of the same date, describing the same places and march over the same road, the writer can scarcely find words to set forth the utter misery, impatience and disgust existing around him. What was pleasant to the former was intolerable to the latter. What made all this difference? asks the author. One condition only—the French are victorious, the Austrians have been defeated."

So, my dear brother, the road you are traveling is the same you have been traveling a long while, but the difference in your physical conditions makes it look different, and therefore the hope reports you have given of yourself are as widely different as the reports in the London Times from the two correspondents. Edward Payson, sometimes so far up on the mount that it seemed as if the centripetal force of earth could no longer hold him, sometimes through a physical disorder was so far down that it seemed as if the nether world would clutch him. Poor William Cowper was a most excellent Christian, and will be loved in the Christian church as long as it sings his hymns beginning: "There is a fountain filled with blood," "Oh, for a closer walk with God," "What various hindrances we meet" and "God moves in a mysterious way." Yet was he so overcome by melancholy or black bile, that it was only through the mistake of the cabriver who took him to a wrong place instead of the river bank that he did not commit suicide.

Christian Physicians.

Spiritual condition so mightily affected by the physical state, what a great opportunity this gives to the Christian physician, for he can feel at the same time both the pulse of the body and the pulse of the soul, and he can administer to both at once, and if medicine is needed he can give that—an earthly and a divine prescription at the same time—and call on not only the apothecary of earth, but the pharmacy of heaven! Ah, that is the kind of doctor I want at my bedside when I do not want any of your profligate or asthetic doctors around my loved ones when the balances of life are trembling. A doctor who has gone through the medical college, and in dissecting room has traversed the wonders of the human mechanism, and found in God in any of the labyrinths, is a fool, and cannot doctor or mine. But, oh, the Christian doctors! What a comfort they have been in many of our households! What they ought to have a warm place in our prayers, as well as praise on our tongues.

I bless God that the number of Christian physicians is multiplying, and some of the students of the medical colleges are here to-day, and I hail you and ordain you to the tender, beautiful, often despised work of a Christian physician, and when you take your diploma from the medical college to look after the perishable body be sure also to get a diploma from the skies to look after the imperishable soul. Let all Christian physicians unite with ministers of the gospel in persuading good people that it is not because God is against them that they sometimes feel depressed, but because of their diseased body. I think David, the psalmist, was no more pious when he called on everything human and angelic, animate and inanimate, even from snowflake to hurricane, to praise God than when he said, "Out of the depths of hell have I cried unto thee, O Lord;" or that Jeremiah was more pious when he wrote his "Lamentations;" or Job when he said, "I know that my Redeemer liveth," than when covered over with the pustules of elephantiasis as he sat in the ashes scratching the scabs off with a broken piece of pottery; or that Alexander Cruden, the concordist, was more pious when he compiled the book that has helped 10,000 students of the Bible than when under the power of physical disorder he was handcuffed and strait waistcoated in Bethnal Green Insane asylum. "Oh," says some Christian man, "no one ought to allow physical disorder to affect the soul. He ought to live so near to God as to be always in the sunshine." Yes, that is good advice. But I warrant that you, the man who gives that advice, has a sound liver. Thank God for a healthful hepatic condition, for as certainly as you are in you will sometimes, like David, and like Jeremiah, and like Cowper, and like Alexander Cruden, and like 10,000 other invalids, be playing a dead march on the minor organ with which now you play a staccato.

Dissipations.

My object at this point is not only to cheer and encourage those of you in good health against those in poor health, but to show Christian people who are strabismus what is the matter with them. Do not charge against the heart the crimes of another portion of your organism. Do not conclude because the path to heaven is not arbored with as fine a foliage, or the bank beautifully decked with as exquisite chrysanthemums as once, that therefore you are on the wrong road. The road will bring you out at the same gate, whether you walk with the stride of an athlete or come up on crutches. Thousands of Christians, horrified about their experience, and morbid about their business, and morbid about the present, and morbid about the future, need the sermon I am now preaching.

Another practical use of this subject is for the young. The theory is abroad that they must first sow their wild oats, and after awhile religion will do. Let you teach the delusion. Wild oats are generally sown in the liver, and they can never be pulled up. They are a terrible crop to reap. They are the cause of a great many of the [illegible]

[illegible] quieting their jangling nerves, and rousing their lagging appetites, and tempting them to start from their outraged liver. Better converted late than never! Oh, yes, for they will get to heaven. But they will go about with a sharp twinge in the knee as the steep hills of the sky in Elijah's chariot. There is an old hymn that we used to sing in the country meeting house when I was a boy, and I remember how the old folks' voices trembled with emotion while they sang it. I have forgotten all but two lines, but those lines are the persuasion of my sermon:

'Twill save us from a thousand snares
To mind religion young.

Fallacies Concerning Prayer.

The question which some still think is worth while to ask, "Why does a loving God, who knows our needs, require us to petition for their supply?" both reveals the fundamental misconception and brings into contrast the fundamental truth in regard to the whole subject. Dr. Edward Cahl has noted, as a strange survival of the pagan mode of thought among Christians, that some of them still conceive of prayer as an attempt to get God to do man's will rather than as an inspiration to get God's will done by man. Jesus has expressly cautioned us not to think that either he prays or we pray for the purpose of informing God about our needs or inducing him to supply them. What end, then, is served by petitionary prayer for the things God knows we need and that he wills to bestow? Surely no thinker is unaware that verbal expression has much to do with both clearness of thought and the concentration of attention and will. It is reason enough for engaging in petitionary prayer that the confession in words of our wants to God enables and pledges us in a clearer consciousness to work out more reverently and patiently the divine conditions of their supply.

Thus it is that through prayer the individual will strive toward unity with the universal will. To inquire to the leaders of religious thought to-day the crude, primitive fancy of bending the divine will into line with the human is unworthy of any who professes to keep abreast of the world's advancing intelligence. The true function of prayer is to lift the will of man into line with the will of God. This it does by its effect in clarifying moral insight, deepening reverent convictions of responsibility and dedicating self more thoroughly to divine ends, which can be accomplished in the world no sooner or more fully than men devote themselves to their fulfillment.—Rev. James M. Whiton in Forum.

Curious Marriage Customs.

Some of the customs peculiar to courtship and marriage among the race of dwarfs who inhabit the Andaman Island are, according to M. de Quatrefages, who recently published a book called "The Pygmies," about these people, very peculiar. Not the least remarkable of them is the procedure of courtship. The young man who has made his choice addresses himself to the parents, who never refuse, but send the girl into the forest, before day, she commends herself. The young man must find her.

If he does not succeed he must renounce all claim to her. The wedding ceremony of these people is equally curious. M. Quatrefages thus describes it: "The two parties climb two flexible trees growing near each other, which an old man then makes to bend toward each other. When the head of the man touches that of the girl they are legally married." Turning from Asia to Europe, we find a very curious custom prevailing in Roumania. Among the peasantry of this country, when a girl attains a marriageable age her trousseau, which has in the meanwhile been carefully woven, spun and embroidered by her mother and herself, is placed in a painted wooden box.

When a young man thinks of asking to be allowed to pay his attention to the girl he is at liberty to open the box, which is always placed in a convenient position, and examine the trousseau. If he is satisfied with the quantity and quality of the dower he makes formal application for the girl's hand, but, if not, he is quite at liberty to retire.

Vanity.

There are times when provisional vanity even keeps watch in the place of principle and acts as servant to conscience. The complaint is kept back, the murmur checked, the hardship endured, because vanity will not let us seem to be, to do, or than others. And when there are so many things to be struggled against it is somewhat comforting to know there is something which is more ineffective than a fault, and an imperfection which may be left to time's correcting. For, in all wholesome natures this youthful vanity is little more than truthful opposition to itself. It has its province and its sphere, and should not be hardly dealt with nor hastily condemned. If capable of realizing life at all, the time comes when life is realized, and self stands out in approximately true proportions; but in the meantime efforts have been put forth, admirable habits formed, character built up. And much of the effort achieved is due to that quality we all blush for Vanity.—Ellen Duval.

Julia Kirby, of Sioux City, Ia., has been granted a divorce because her husband pinched her. She claimed that her body had been repeatedly covered with black and blue marks caused by pinches.

Death grimly bars the passage way through the door of happiness for thousands upon thousands of fretful women. The woman whose nerves are racked by pain, and whose strength is sapped by debilitating drains, due to weakness and disease of the organs peculiar to women, cannot be happy. She has only shadows where happiness should be, and death daily confronts her. Maternity, to a woman thus afflicted, is fraught with great danger. Even if she escapes with her life, it is at the price of a martyr to untold agony. This is needless. Thousands of women have found a sure, and certain remedy and have spoken in no uncertain words of its almost miraculous action.

This remedy is Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription. It acts directly upon the organs that make wifehood and motherhood possible. It gives them health and vigor. It stops weakening drains, allays inflammation and soothes pain. The nerves, no longer tortured, resume their natural function of directing the healthy action of all the organs of the body. Under its fostering influence the weak, sickly, nervous, fretful invalid becomes a robust, capable, helpful, amiable wife, fitted for the duties of motherhood. All good druggists sell it.

"Three years ago," writes Mrs. J. M. Mesder, of 1794 Vanderbilt Avenue, New York, N. Y., "I was given up by some of the best physicians in this city. They said that was no cure for me unless I would go to a hospital and have an operation performed. I could not walk across the room for the pain in my side. I thought I would die. I took Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription and after I had taken three bottles I could work, walk, and ride. I could write a year and not praise your medicine enough."

Dr. Pierce's book, "The Common Sense Medical Adviser" is a treasure in any family. It contains 1008 pages, with 300 illustrations. A copy FREE to every person who will send to the World's Dispensary Medical Association, Buffalo, N. Y., only twenty-one stamps, to pay the cost of customs and mailing only. THE GREAT ARSON CASE

TWO TRUE BILLS AGAINST SMITH AND CORBETT.

The Trial of the Notorious Ballard Gang Begins To-day—Judge Ferguson Presides at the Assizes—The Prisoners Seem Anxious.

Orangeville, Ont., May 17.—To-morrow morning will see the beginning of the end of the greatest arson case that ever unearthed in Canada, the trial of six members of the now notorious Ballard gang of alleged burners and conspirators. The final act in the long carnival of crime will be some few miles removed from the scene of the former dark chapters, but the interest manifested in this town is none the less for that. Two hundreds of men from Corbetton and Melancthon are here eagerly interested in every particular of the case. The wedding proceedings to-day have not advanced the trial very far, but many minor incidents have occurred that in their relation to the trial must not be forgotten.

At one o'clock the Spring Assize Court for the County of Dufferin was opened with his Honor Mr. Justice Ferguson on the bench. The docket before his Lordship showed six civil cases and twelve criminal charges to be tried, all of the latter being connected with the arson conspiracy.

TWO TRUE BILLS.

At ten minutes to six the grand jury brought in two true bills as the result of their afternoon's work. They are: A true bill against James E. Corbett and Abner Smith, found on the charge that they did burn the house, barn, and outbuildings of James E. Corbett on October 1st, 1894. A true bill against James Ballard for having set fire to his house and two barns on the 9th of April, 1892. This charge against James Ballard will be proceeded with in the morning.

WINNIPEG.

Shipments of Cattle—Galician Immigrants —The Governor-General's Coup de Main.

Winnipeg, May 17.—Gordon & Ironsides will send a large shipment of cattle east next Saturday. This will be about the last of the stock of cattle for sale, and no more large shipments will be made until cattle have had time to thrive on grazing. A large number of young cattle are being shipped east.

Mayor McCreary has received information from Dauphin to the effect that about 40 of the recently-arrived Galicians have already made their entries for homesteads there. A letter from Edmonton says that about 100 of the last party have been placed on farms and that 200 more can be accommodated at once.

Bert Bell, one of the Winnipeg lads charged with counterfeiting coin, pleaded guilty when arraigned to-day. He will be sentenced next week.

The first crop bulletin for the year will be issued by the Manitoba Government early in June.

Mgr. Merry de Val will arrive here this week. On the day of his arrival he will be presented with an address at St. Boniface, and in the evening in the afternoon there will be a gathering of children at St. Mary's Church, when addresses will be presented and services held. His Excellency will leave for Quebec from the palace in St. Boniface to the church by the Catholic societies of the city.

It is said Mr. J. R. Booth, the Ottawa capitalist and owner of the Parry Sound Railway, is one of the men interested in the new proposed air line to Duluth.

THE FOREST CITY.

Robberies in London West—Soldiers for the Queen's Jubilee.

London, Ont., May 17.—Two daring robberies occurred early this morning in London West. The general store of R. A. Jones was ransacked, and large quantities of goods and $1.50 in cash taken away. S. Goupil's church rectory was also entered by a window, and a quantity of eatables, a silver watch, and a small sum in cash are missing. The money was taken from the clothes of the Rev. G. B. Sage, while the latter was sleeping in the room. An attempt was also made to rob the residence of Mrs. Ryan, Piccadilly street, and Messrs. W. and H. Mohan, South London, but the occupants frightened the thieves away.

The members of the 7th Fusiliers Association will preach Queen's jubilee sermons on June 20, and the various church parade will be asked to devote the collection of the day towards the new hospital.

Color-Sergt. A. T. Cooper, and Sergt. R. H. Price, of Wolseley barracks, have received notice that they have been selected to represent No. 1 Company, R.C.I., at the Queen's jubilee.

Two of our young men went to Hungerford one evening last week and report a good time.

Our young men take occasional trips up north. What is the attraction, boys?

To show the rapidity with which seeding is now done on the farm, we may mention that Mr. Alex. Hume's Clyndale team "drilled in" with a ten hoe drill, 90 bushels of seed from Wednesday noon till Saturday night, nine hours constituting a day's work. This covered about 45 acres.—Campbellford Herald.

A SPECIAL WARNING TO LADIES.

The proprietors of Diamond Dyes are the only people in the world that make a special dyes for coloring cottons and all mixed goods.

It is now admitted by all the best color chemists that a dye prepared specially for all wool goods will not color cotton or mixed goods successfully.

When Diamond Dyes Pink, Purple, Orange, Garnet, Navy, Yellow, Blue, Scarlet, Turkey Red, Green, Cardinal, Brown and Black for Cotton and Mixed Goods are used, satisfaction is always guaranteed.

Beware of the dyes that pretend to color all wool goods and cotton with the same package of dye.

The verdict of millions on this continent is, "Diamond Dyes are first and best."

LIVE STOCK MARKETS.

Toronto, May 18.—At the Western cattle market to-day we had the heavy run of one hundred loads on sale; there were 1,800 hogs, only about 50 sheep and lambs, 150 calves, and a few milkers. The market opened weak, dull, and altogether badly, but it strengthened out somewhat by noon, and, while all the stuff was not sold, we had a fair clearance.

The export trade was better than it has been lately; accumulated stocks have been shipped off, and upon being plentiful buying was more brisk and prices firmer, the range being from 4¼ to 4¾c per lb. After all the export cattle were sold, though some lots were a shade able time left changing hands, and drovers complain there is no money in the business.

Milkers were slow, and not much enquired for; anything good, however, will fetch from $30 to $35 each.

Calves were much too plentiful, considering the quality of most of them, and prices ruled low; anything good prices ruled from $3 to $5 each, but poor stuff fetches very little.

The Tailors' Strike.

New York, May 17.—The 10,000 tailors who went on strike yesterday were still firm in their demands to-day, and their ranks were promised many additions. From all indications it is probably that before to-morrow 20,0000 garments workers, on the east side, will be on strike. There have been no disturbances, and although the police have the reserves in the neighborhood of the strikers' headquarters ready for use, they have so far not been called upon. The westmakers have decided to join the Brotherhood of Tailors, and an Executive Committee of this organization meets to-day to select a strike committee The Women Tailors' Union will also join the discontented tailors to-night or to-morrow. The work of selecting a leader is now engaging the chief attention of the strike committees, and it is probable that they will come to some definite conclusion to-day. It is estimated that 1,000 shops are affected.

The First Sod Turned.

Iroquois, Ont., May 17.—The very interesting ceremony of turning the first sod on the Iroquois section of the new canal was performed at seven o'clock this morning. In the presence of a large number of people.

The first announcement of a substantial character in connection with Lady Aberdeen's scheme to found a Victorian Order of Nurses in Canada, was made by Hon Excellency's chaplain, the Rev. W. T. Herridge, at a public meeting in Hamilton, Ont., on Monday. Mr. Herridge stated that one Montreal man had offered to donate $5,000, provided one hundred others gave amounts running from $1,000 to $5,000, and the same offer had been made in Ottawa.

Agitation in the world of homœopathic medicine has been its very soul of progress, as in politics and religion—the differences of opinion and the individuality of men have been present to the disagreements by which the standard of those bodies has been elevated. So with most of our famous remedies—foremost is Hollister's Rocky Mountain Tea, which stands the world-famous remedy for general debility and impoverished blood, and which, when allied with its genuine strength, be a miraculous creator of appetite, vitality and stimulant, to the general fertility of the system. Quinine Wine, and its improvement, Wine from the first discoverer of the great virtues of Quinine as a medical agent, is one of the most thoroughly flavored items ever offered to the public. It is one of the great tonics and natural life-giving stimulants which the medical profession have been compelled to recognize and prescribe. Messrs. Hollister, Rocky Mountain Tea Co., Toronto, Ont., are the preparation of their pet. Quinine Wine the great cure due to its unsurpassed merit, and the strict exactness of the articles which they offer to the public or men into the market purged of all the defects which skilful observation and scientific opinion have pointed out in the less perfect preparations of the past. All druggists sell it.

To Light Fires.

This inventor may not get a monument in this generation, but in years to come the new woman will be called upon to subscribe the money that will in enduring bronze commemorate the virtues of the man who removed from their husbands' lives the great drudgery of making a fire in the cold range of the chilly and draughty grate, says the New York Journal. The new fire-lighting fan does away with the treadmill-like kindling that gayly burns out and leaves no impression upon the stubborn coal.

It is a simple mechanical contrivance that "fans," shaped as its name. It fits close to the stove front or the grate. Within its sheet-iron walls is a main spring and clock-wheels to work it. It is wound up by turning a handle at the side and set going or stopped by a lever. When the apparatus is to be used a small quantity of paraffine oil is poured into the fan through the blow pipe, which is filled with asbestos fiber. When the fiber is thoroughly soaked a light is applied, and the fan is going, thus forcing from the outlet into the grate an oxidizing flame which quickly spreads through and thoroughly ignites the coal with which the grate has already been filled. The machine is also used for blowing up a dead fire, the spring being wound up and the fan set in motion for from three to ten minutes.

The Dark Dining Room.

It may seem impossible to convert some of the dismal, shady dining rooms in the cramped quarters of some city houses into things of beauty, but the ingenious housewife will not be discouraged, no matter how closely the room may be shut in by the high walls of surrounding houses. If the dining room is small and dark, and has little communication with direct air and sunlight, it will pay the tenant to make the few improvements that the smallest capital may withhold. Pull down the gloomy paper and substitute cream white, pearl, atmospheric blue, custard or some such cheerful and magnifying tint. Don't carpet the floor. Have it stained or painted a light brown, and put a rug under the table not large enough to interfere with the chairs, but sufficient to rest the feet. Put thin white muslin shades on the window, and if the means allow, drape over these the thinnest curtains. In some of the finest houses, for summer service, the windows are hung with holland to keep out the sun, white linen to temper the light, and yellow or tarlatan to respect a pretty summer effect. This gauzy cotton stuff is put on quite full, and caught back with huge rosettes of the same.—New York Commercial.

The Best Pills.—Mr. Wm. Vanderwoort, Sidney Crossing, Ont., writes: "We have been using Parmelee's Pills, and find them by far the best Pills we ever used." For Delicate and Debilitated Constitutions these pills act like a charm. Taken in small doses, the effect is both a tonic and a stimulant, mildly exciting the nervous of the body, giving tone and vigor.

Chronic Derangements of the Stomach, Liver and Blood, are speedily removed by the active principle of the ingredients entering into the composition of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills. These pills act specifically on the deranged organs, stimulating to action the dormant energies of the system, thereby removing disease and renewing life and vitality to the afflicted. In this lies the great secret of the popularity of Parmelee's Vegetable Pills.

A woman never really knows the meaning of happiness and content until she is the mother of a healthy, happy child. The health of the child depends on the health of the mother, both before and after birth. Most all of woman's weakness and particularly the weakness that most strongly influences the health of children, comes from some derangement or disease of the distinctly feminine organs. Dr. Pierce's Favorite Prescription will cure troubles of this nature. It should be taken regularly by every woman during the entire period of gestation. It gives strength to all the organs involved, lessens the pains of childbirth and insures the health of both mother and child.

SAVED HER DRUNKEN HUSBAND

She Finally Administered a Remedy Without his Knowledge, and Cured Him.

A correspondent writes: I had such a happy home and a noble, big-hearted husband till he took to drinking, first through sociability, then because the fiendish desire would come over him, crazing him for drink.

"I was heart-broken. My happy home was fast becoming one of misery till a friend told me to try a liquor cure called Anti-Booze. I was willing to try anything, so I sent $1.00 as she suggested, to the Oriental Chemical Co., 20 St. Alexis St., Montreal, and by return mail I received in a plain wrapper a little box of pills. I put one of them in his coffee every night and morning without him knowing it, (as they dissolve immediately), and in less than a week, to my delight, he stopped drinking entirely.

"Anti-Booze has changed my drunken husband into a sober, industrious, happy man, and I feel it my duty to tell others about it. They will send full information without charge to any who will write them. "J. D. H." 18cm

Another Skin Game.

R. W. Randall, a Tyendinaga farmer, was taken in by two young men on the Belleville market last Saturday. After engaging in some conversation one of them asked the other if he could lend him a knife to sharpen a pencil. The request was complied with, but the man who procured the knife could not open it. After some parleying a wager was made for the cigars that he could open it, which however he failed to do. The curiosity of the farmer was aroused in reference to the knife and he made a wager to the extent of $6 that he could open it. His money was covered by the two apparent strangers and after trying for some time Mr. Randall found he could not open it. His money was then confiscated and the young men made a hasty retreat.

Notice to Farmers.

The best Manitoba Red Fife seed wheat, the best White Emmitage seed corn that can be procured are for sale at the Big Mill at a small margin over cost. Try my flour—"Dafoe's Best" and "Nonesuch", prices and quality considered they cannot be surpassed. Toe bread made from them has a rich golden color, sweet flavor and retains its moisture longer than any flour in the market. For pastry try "seek no further". Ask your grocer for it and take no other. It suits them all. J. R. DAFOE. 12j

Farmers' Institutes.

The annual meeting of each Farmer's Institute in Ontario will be held this year on Tuesday, June 1st, on which day the new directors and auditors for the ensuing year will be elected. Before 1896 the government grant to each institute was dependent on the report sent to the Department of Agriculture at the close of the year. It now depends on the report given at the annual meeting, a copy of which must reach the superintendent not later than July 20th, 1897. The grant will be paid on recommendation of the Superintendent to the Minister of Agriculture, as soon as convenient after July 1st.

Well Pleased with Him.

The Official Board of the Atherley Circuit met in the basement of the Methodist church there on the 3rd inst. at 2 p.m., Rev. J. S. McMullen presiding. The three churches were well represented and business was expedited. The full amount of salary was forthcoming the Connectional Funds were in advance. The following resolution was unanimously passed: "That having learned of the probable removal at the approaching conference of our esteemed pastor we, the the members of the Atherley Official Board, hereby place upon record our very high appreciation of the Rev. J. S. McMullen's integrity as a christian man, his fearless denunciation of sin, as a gospel minister and abundant labors in church building and all church work; and while we do hope that he may be even yet returned to us for the 3rd year, (being unanimously invited), we pray God's blessing to rest upon him wherever his lot may be cast." Rev. J. S. McMullen has received a unanimous invitation to become the pastor of Plainville Circuit at the ensuing conference.—(Con.

Death of Mr. Meacham.

Mr. J. Hubbard Meacham, one of the oldest and best known residents of Belleville, died in that city on Friday last. He was born there nearly 90 years ago and spent his long and active life in that place. He was appointed postmaster of the then village of Belleville over fifty years ago and faithfully filled that position for over half a century, seeing his native place during that time rise from a village to an important city. He was only superannuated about two years ago, when our former townsman, John Taylor Esq., was appointed in his stead. At the time of his retirement he was said to be the oldest effective postmaster in Canada. The Rev. S. M. Meacham, D. D., formerly of Napanee and now a missionary in Japan, is a son of his. The remaining surviving members of his family are Mr. J. B. Meacham, of Toronto, and Mrs. J. Wilson, of Gleneora. Dr. Meacham, M.P.P., of Odessa is a nephew, and so are our townsmen, Messrs G. Bogart, P.M., J. M. Bogart and Marshall Bogart, Esq. His wife, who survives him was Miss Booth, a resident of Napanee sixty years ago. For seventy years he was an active member of the Methodist church, and was, we believe, a trustee of the large Bridge Street church from its very origin. He well remembered when there was no church in Belleville, or but a few small houses of any kind.

—The Magistrate at Belleville sentenced Willie S. Smith, of Marmora, to three years in the Penitentiary for criminal assault on a little girl of nine years.

A bicycle dealer in town received the following letter recently:

Dear siz.—I live on mi farm, am 57 years old and just a little sports. My nefew bot himself a new bisicle and sent his old one by frate, and ive learned to ride same. Its a pile of fun, but mi bisicle jolts consterrible. A feller come along yesterday with a bisicle that had hollow injun rubber tires stuffed with wind. He let me try hissen and mi, it run like a kruhin! He told me you sell injun rubber just the same as hissen. How much will it take to fix mine up like hissen? mine is all iron wheels. Do you punch the hollow hole threw the injen rubber, or will I hall to do it myself? how do you stick the ends together after you get it done? If your injun rubber is already holler will it come any cheaper emtpy? I can get all the wind I want out here. P.S. how much do you charge for the doodad you stuff the wind into the rubber with and where do you start?

Boyle & Son have the "holler" and "unholler" tires, "doodads" and all appurtenances for bicycles.

Sheriff Hawley is in communication with the Minister of Justice at Ottawa with the object of removing the prisoners Troy and Hughes to the penitentiary until the next assizes. The Pen. is the proper place for them, and no doubt the request will be complied with. Should it be decided to leave the prisoners here Governor Van-Luven will have larger cells prepared for them.

Hughes is quite a reader, and says he read over two hundred books while he was in the penitentiary.

Troy draws by his conversation that he has received a fair education, and is well posted in the history of his native land, Ireland. He is too high disinclined to care for general reading, and spends a good deal of his time reading his prayerbook, which he brought with him, and performing other devotional duties.

In conversation with our reporter during the trial, Troy said he did not care what the outside world thought of the truthfulness of his evidence but he would be sorry to leave the impression on the minds of the convicts in the penitentiary that he had sworn falsely about his partner, Hughes.

Two of the rods in Troy's cell door were cut off a few inches from the floor this week, making an aperture of sufficient in size to allow his meals to be slipped through. By this means it will not be necessary to unlock and open the door three times a day.

Orange Blossoms.

On Monday evening last an excellent entertainment was given in the Opera House. The audience, we are sorry to say, was not as large as it should have been, or what the merits of the entertainment warranted. Mr. R. Harvey, of Kingston, opened the programme with an instrumental solo, and which was well executed. Mr. A. F. March, also of Kingston, sang a solo, The Grenadiers, and in response to a hearty encore sang, "Maying." Mr. W. Mowat gave a Scotch reading, which was highly appreciated. Mr. J. Fred Tilly made his first appearance before a Napanee audience since his return from Toronto, where he spent the winter pursuing his vocal studies. Fred is always a favorite with Napanee audiences, but he now shows marked improvements, and many were the favorable comments passed upon him by those who heard him. In his selection "The Diver," his fine bass voice showed to excellent advantage, the low notes being taken with clearness and perfect ease. He responded to an encore by giving "In the Cold." His second number was Karl Forme's arrangement of "The Mill Wheel," which was also well rendered. Mrs. Burritt, who is always a favorite with Napanee audiences, rendered a couple of solos, "Because I love thee dear" and "Snowflakes." She was obliged to respond to a hearty encore. The second part of the programme was a play entitled "Orange Blossoms," put on by the following members of the Kingston Dramatic Club—Misses. Macpherson, Clement and Swift, and Messrs. March, Norton, Taylor and Cunningham. The play was amusing and given in a manner which reflects the highest credit on those who made up the casts.

Head and Hands Left.

A dispatch from Kingston says: Warden Metcalfe, in excellent good nature, was asked about the proposed removal. He said: "Thank goodness they cannot remove my head literally. I still have my brains and hands left. There is no use in feeling miserable, so I'm taking the matter good-naturedly. As far as myself and the other officials are concerned, we are on the best of terms, and are living in peace and happiness." He would say nothing about the report. It was not his place to do so. If the department asked for his opinion, he would give it.

Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the public library association of the town was held on Monday evening last. The Secretary gave a report of the year's work, showing that increasing interest was being manifested in the library, and a good work being done. The following officers were elected:

Mining Notes.

It is now stated that the Deloro mispickel mines are turning out $1,000 a day in gold.

The Picton correspondent of The Toweo News writes: This village is now on the verges of a gold boom. Prospectors and capitalists are arriving daily, taxing the hotels to their utmost capacity. Many options have already been taken up. Capt. Holmes and J. Rodd Perry, P.L.S., of Napanee, have been here for some days, and have leased from James Jackson, on lot 14, con. 5 Kaladar; from Peter and John Feverant on lots 11 and 12, con. 7, Anglesea, and from Mr. Shire, of Northbrook.

F. Burrows, P.S.I., of Napanee, has a gang of men opening up his mine, with wonderful results. They have struck mispickel in large quantities.

Patrick Quinlan has discovered what is said to be the richest of them all, so says Expert Rogers, and has sold it for $5000 spot cash. This is not the Golden Fleece.

Captain O'Neil, of Marmora, who has been handling the Golden Fleece, or what is better known as the Gelina mine, has informed me that the mine is likely to change hands in a few days, and will be opened up at once with a staff of 200 men.

A party of prospectors from Napanee, composed of Messrs. Thos. E. Anderson, collector of customs; E. H. Dalton, manager of the Dominion Bank; Edward Francisco, of the Royal Hotel, and J. M. Bogart, a wealthy sheep rancher of Texas, were registered at the Stewart House on the 9th, and paid a visit to some of the mining properties in this section. Capt. Holmes, J. Rodd Perry, P.L.S, and F. Burrows, I.P.S., and son Alf. of the same town have also been staying at the Stewart House for some days; also Capt. O'Neil, of Marmora. Messrs. Holmes and Perry left for Napanee to-day on business but will return again on Wednesday.—Picton ontario.

Mrs. Sophia Williams, of Camden, near Camden East, was in Napanee on Tuesday with samples of corundum, emery and gold quartz. Corundum is worth from $60 to $500 a ton. Samples shown her at the Grenadiers, and in response to a bearing of $200 per ton, and she says that found on her property is a better sample.
